GOVERNOR'S CHARITIES AXE.

FELL ON APPROPRIATIONS AT RANDOM, A CRITIC SAYS.

At Least It Fell at the Root of Necessities, Not Superfluttes, and Protonged Unnecessary Suffering and Deferred Expenditure That Must Yet Be Made.

Gov. Odell's attempt to bring about a more economical administration of State charities, which resulted in his lopping off $192,900 of appropriations for the State charitable institutions that had been provided for by the Legislature, has been investigated by a writer in the current issue of Charities, who declares that the muchtalked-of economy of the Governor is no economy at all, but simply the deferring of absolutely necessary expenditures. For this reason and because of the suffering which the most unfortunate of the State's wards must endure on account of the Governor's "economy," Charities regards the Governor's shaving down of the appropriations as ill advised.

The amount of money asked for the Women's House of Refuge at Hudson was $24,500. The Governor cut off $8,500. The money was needed for the reconstruction of administration buildings and the construction of a prison. The Governor said that the abandonment of the plan to take the inmates of the Bedford Home to this institution made this expenditure unnecesinstitution made this expenditure unnecessary. Charities says that the money has been needed for years and that the Governor's misunderstanding of the situation is a great misfortune. Of all the items in the appropriation bill, it says, these were the most urgently needed.

The Western House of Refuge at Albion asked for $5,900. The Governor cut out $4,300, which was for electrical apparatus and a team of horses and carriage, because, he said, they were not urgently needed. Charities said the installation of the electrical plant would mean a big saving to the State, which now pays $1,200 a year to a private corporation for light. In five years, it says, the expense of a plant would be met by this outlay. As for the horses and carriage, it declares that investigation has shown them to be absolutely necessary.

The case of the Reformatory for Women at Bedford, Charities regards as especially unfortunate. The appropriation bill provided for $52,450. The Governor didn't sign the bill, which, of course, wiped out the entire appropriation. It says of this:

"As most of the items were for urgently needed improvements, the failure of this bill to become a law works serious injustice to the Bedford institution. It is the only institution which has received absolutely no new appropriation for anything but maintenance." no new appropriation for anything but

For the House of Refuge on Randall's Island the Governor reduced the appro-Jaland the trovernor reduced the appro-priation $5,500, which Charities says was needed to keep the buildings in decent re-pair. Of the Governor's act in cutting $2,150 from the appropriation for the Custodial Asylumat Newark, on the ground that a duplicate electric lighting plant was not needed, Charities says: "It is customary for such institutions to have a duplicate plant, so that if one part breaks down the work can be done by another. On several occasions, the by another. On several occasions the asylum has been left in darkness by the breakdown of some part of the machinery, and as many of the immates are hysterical and have a child's fear of the dark, the health and discipline, as well as the convenience of the institution, requires that this Governor's "economy." Forty-three thousand three hundred dollars, asked for a new building for employees, for grading, for flooring and for gravelling an ice pond, was cut out of the appropriation bill on the ground that these things were not needed immediately. Charities declares that they are needed immediately and that the amount of the ground that these things were not needed immediately and that the amount of the ground that th are needed immediately and that the amount The $28,000 cut from the appropriation for the Soldiers' and Sailors' Home at Bath

Charities takes each individual item in the appropriations that were cut out overnor and proceeds to show the Chief Executive of the State wherein he has made a mistake. In the case of the State School for the Blind, the Governor, in cutting the appropriation $29,000, said that a new power house, laundry and heating plant were not needed just now. Charities

Eays.
"In regard to the power house, it is only is so dilapidated that the walls threaten to fall. The boilers are located in the cellar and are very old and worn and insufficient in capacity to provide the heat and power required."

Charities says that the cutting off of $182,900 may add to the administration's reputation for economy, but it does not benefit the taxpayers and causes unneces-sary suffering and inconvenience to the officers, inmates and patients of the State charitable institutions. The hardest part of it all, it says, is that in many cases the items cut out by the Governor are the ones meeted by the institutions. In the future, it adds, it would be well for the Governor to consult the managers of the institutions before exercising his veto power in the somewhat indiscriminating way that has characterized his action this

THE SHERIFF'S ILLEGAL FEES.

POUNDAGE DEMANDED, COURT SAYS, WITHOUT RIGHT.

Setback for O'Brien in the Appellate Term -One Lawyer Found Who Would Rather Fight Than Pay-Others Paid Under Protest Rather Than Fight. Sheriff O'Brien's practice of collecting poundage fees from the attorneys for judgment creditors where no collections or settlements are made on levies got a severe setback yesterday from the Appellate Term need should be met."

Next to the Bedford home, the Rome State Custodial Asylum suffered most from the had no power to exact such poundage nary demands, but such lawyers have been shy of airing their wrongs in public and exposing the condition of affairs which is by the Governor was for much-needed repairs and improvements, says Charilies, and it proceeds to tell what they are at had the courage of his convictions, and resisted the payment of $102.70 in poundage fees on an unsatisfied execution issued against Louis J. Porr as the result of a judgment for $1,637 obtained by Christian Meller in the City Court against Porr in 1887. Meller died in 1893, and his daughter Frieda employed Allen as her attorney to collect the judgment. The execution was issued in her name and a levy was made on Oct. 25 last, but Porr showed the Sheriff a release of the judgment, dated Dec. 11, 1889, and the levy was released and the execution returned unsatisfied. In his execution returned unsatisfied. In his return the Sheriff gave as his reason for releasing the levy that the judgment had already been satisfied.

O'Brien then demanded from Allen poundage fees, which Allen refused to pay. The Sheriff then brought suit against him in the Municipal Court and bbtained a judgment for $102.70. Allen appealed from this judgment to the Appellate Term, and in reversing it Justices Truax, Freedman and Gildersleeve say:

The right of a Sheriff to fees is derived from

in reversing it Justices Truax, Freedman and Gildersleeve say:

The right of a Sheriff to fees is derived from and depends upon statute. At common law a Sheriff could not lawfully receive fees. The statute in force—subdivision 7 of Section 17 of Chapter 418 of the Laws of 1892 (which chapter amends Chapter 523 of the Laws of 1890)—provides that the Sheriff is entitled to certain fees where he makes a collection, or where a settlement has been made after levy, or where the execution has been vacated and set aside (Campbell vs. Cothran 56 N. Y. 279). In thi case the Sheriff did not make a collection, or was a settlement made after levy, nor was the execution vacated or set aside, and, therefore, the Sheriff is not entitled to poundage. It was held in the case of Flack vs. the State of New York 95 N. Y. 481) that a Sheriff is right to poundage is made by the language of the statute, to depend exclusively upon the collection of the money called for by the process, and that no right to the statutory fees can arise in favor of the Sheriff except in collection of the execution or the interference by the plaintiff in the execution was not show any interference by the plaintiff in the execution was not show any interference by the plaintiff in the execution which should be deemed to be the equivalent of collection. It is also to be borne in mind that the defendant in this action was not the person in whose behalf the execution was not the person in whose behalf the execution was sisued. He was simply acting as attorney for that person. In Van Kirk vs. Sedgwick (87 N. Y. 265) it was held that the Sheriff may look to the attorney only when the judgment itself is satisfied or discharged, or the attorney has countermanded the execution. The plaintiff herein does not allege that the defendant herein satisfied or discharged, or the defendant herein satisfied or discharged the judgment, or that he countermanded the execution.

UNDERGROUND STATIONS.

Brick-red and Green Specimen to Be Shown to the Public First.

The heads of the Interborough Railroad Company have decided to throw open for public inspection, as soon as possible, one of the stations of the rapid transit system. The one nearest completion is the station at Columbus Circle. There remains less than two weeks work to be done on it. The Columbus Circle station is typical. The subway stations vary in size, but the general design is one. Each station, however, will have a color scheme of its own, so as to help tell passengers where they are. The engineers have given a great deal of attention to color devices, so that travellers in the subway will know by a glance out of a fast-moving train when they are approaching the station at which they wish to alight The Columbus Circle station has plat-forms 200 feet long. It has two entrances and two exits. The color scheme is dark green and terra cotta, a combination that green and terra cotta, a combination that possesses the saving grace of being conspicuous. The platform floor is granolithic, divided into squares measuring three feet on the side. Where the platform connects with the side wall there will be a "sanitary curve," so that there will be no corners or crevices to gather dust or filth. The station will be illuminated by clusters of incondescent lights fitted into the panels

The station will be illuminated by clusters of incandescent lights, fitted into the panels of the walls and ceiling.

The platform of each station in the subway will be "valleyed," which means that the pavement will be laid so that a hose can be used in washing down the platforms, and the water will run into drains near the side walls. Special appliances will be put in all the stations to insure ventilation of the lavatories. Each stairway will be 5½ to 8 feet in width. In the centre of each station there will be two large panels in tiling of there will be two large panels in tiling of decorative design with the name of the station in large letters.
